HALF STARVED STUDENTS.

Enthusiastic Seekers After Knowledge Who Are Often Nearly Faint.

It seems difficult to believe that there is actual suffering for want of food among the students in this city, but instances of privation are not so uncommon as might be supposed. The young men and women who are willing to go unfed for twenty-four hours rather than give up studying are generally high spirited, and would resent offers of assistance as insults. They keep their sufferings to themselves and slave away at their work with that grim determination of despair. Occasionally the truth comes out and then kind friends in a delicate way supply the much needed food.

When students whose finances are in a better shape by some chance learn that the young man or woman has been living on half rations for weeks, they invite the unfortunate one to dinner or to spend the night with them. That is about the only way in which to approach the sensitive person without giving offense.

A student at one of the theological seminaries here recently invited a classmate to his home for dinner. The guest hardly looked robust and well fed, but his friend never once suspected that he was half starved. When he sat down at the generous board the poverty stricken young man intended to eat sparingly, lest his secret should be revealed. The temptation proved too great, however, for nature would make herself felt.

The poor fellow ate and ate until his host and hostess could not help noticing his ravenous appetite. They realized the truth and insisted that there was no occasion for his apologies. Pressing invitations to dinner came to him frequently from that family after that.

A young woman who is a pupil at the Art Students' League had a similar experience with two of her fellow students, whom she invited to spend Saturday night and Sunday at her home in the annexed district. The two had no false modesty about their straitened finances. "Isn't this jolly?" they said at dinner. "You must really pardon us for eating so heartily, but we can't help paying up old scores and laying in a supply for the future."

The pursuit of knowledge is marked nowadays by some of the same privations by which it was in the early days of Oxford.—New York Tribune.

Progress of a Chinese Houseboat.

The Chinese houseboat is a flat bottomed punt, of which the stern half is covered in. Rather more than the anterior third consists of open deck, where the fourteen rowers stand when they wield their oars and where the whole crew spend their mats and sleep at night. Turning on a pivot at the bow is a long, heavy oar, which, when skillfully handled, does more of the steering than the rudder. The boat is furnished with a tall and strong mast, and with the least fair wind up goes a Chinese sail, ribbed with the light bamboo. When the wind drops eighteen men jump ashore, fifteen of them tow the houseboat along with from 200 to 1,000 feet of bamboo rope, chanting as they pull, while two men keep the rope clear of projecting rocks along the river bank, and the remaining one runs beside the rest, spurring them to their work by shouting, waving his arms and clapping his hands.

Often the banks become too precipitous for this "tracking," and the fourteen rowers take to their oars. The mode of progression is changed ten or fifteen times a day. Often the boat crosses the river to gain quieter water or a smoother bank, and is carried down a quarter of a mile in the course of this maneuver, though all hands stamp the deck fiercely, row with desperation and fill the air with discordant yells.—Cor. Montreal Witness.

Albino Birds.

An extraordinary collection of birds is kept at the residence of Mr. W. Ingram, M. P., at Westgate, living happily in every variety of condition; in confinement in very large cages, in spacious voleries, in the wild in pleasure, and lastly, with perfect liberty and unclipped wings. There is one class of birds in which Mr. Ingram is particularly rich—he has ten albinos—viz., three white jackdaws, three white blackbirds, a white thrush, a white starling, a white hedge sparrow and a pure white variety of the herring gull, caught in the neighborhood.

One of the white jackdaws will go with the members of the family to the seashore and follow them about. What is even more wonderful, this affectionate bird is taken by Mr. Ingram in the autumn to Over Stilton, in Yorkshire, where she takes long walks with a member of the family, flying from tree to tree. Upon the whole, I deem this white jackdaw to be the most charming bird I ever met my good fortune to meet with.—J. W. Weir in Nature Notes.

A Cyclone's Queer Work.

Nothing could withstand in places the terrible force of the wind on that fatal day of the 29th of April, 1892, on Mauritius. It will be for scientific men to explain how trees firmly planted more than a century back, and of eight to twelve feet diameter, were felled to the ground; how the ironlike teakwood branches were snapped and cut and broken as mere brushwood; how girders of iron eighteen inches thick were indented and twisted so as to become useless, as in the case of the great pulley ladders of a sea dredger; how, in fine, a column of stones, each weighing more than a ton and fast riveted with iron girders and with cement, was thrown down like a pack of cards, and it will be for meteorologists to explain how an island thirty-three miles by thirty-one in extent, through which the center of a cyclone is passing, can escape at all from a wind so violent as the above denotes.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Lawrence county lays claim to the largest man in the state of Kentucky. He weighs 620 pounds and is 6 feet 8 inches in height. His arms measure two feet in circumference and his thighs three feet.

A carriage bag is a pretty gift for carriage people. It is made of cloth lined and wadded, into which the feet are slipped and the mouth drawn up nearly to the knees, insuring comfort on a cold day.

THE REPORT UNTRUE.

No Indications of a Fresh Outbreak Among the Tennessee Miners.

KNOXVILLE, Nov. 29.—(Special)—Rumors of a probable fresh outbreak among the miners at Coal Creek from all present appearances are utterly without foundation. Major Huger, general superintendent of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, from whose office there is a wire direct to the mines, says this afternoon that everything is quiet there and in his opinion will remain so. Gen. Ellery Anderson was here Sunday and Lieut. Fyfe Anderson was here yesterday.

They united in saying that in their belief the miners have made up their minds that it is best to accept the situation and make no further attempt to solve the convict labor problem. The general conviction here is that the rumors of renewed disturbance were started simply in the hope of precipitating the removal of the convicts from the mines. One thing is certain, and that is that the convict lease system question will have to grapple with next session on account of the growing dissatisfaction of putting convict labor in competition with free labor.

A Sensational Lynching.

ATCHISON, Kans., Nov. 29.—(Special)—The town of Hiawatha was the scene of a sensational lynching at 12 o'clock last night. Thursday night the people of the African Methodist Church gave a Thanksgiving supper, at which "Commodore True," a colored tough of the place, raised a disturbance. Will Walball, one of the deacons of the church, led him outside and nothing more was thought of the affair, until suddenly True rushed in the room with a knife in his hand and stabbed Walball to death. True was arrested and lodged in the county jail. There was great indignation about the murder and last night a mob broke into the jail and carried True to a tree in the jail yard and strung him up by the neck. While the man hung there writhing in the agony of death, four bullets were fired into his body by the mob.

A Bad Gang Broken Up.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 29.—(Special)—Several young men, after filling themselves with bad whiskey at Bostwick's distillery near Kyles Ford, started on the rampage and were in a fair way of getting up a small sized riot. Deputy Sheriff Lawson availed himself of the opportunity, it is said, to settle an old grudge against a young man named Neel, and made a plunge at him with a large knife breaking the point in Neel's arm. Neel pulled a pistol and fired five shots, riddling Lawson with bullets, killing him instantly. He gave himself up and is now in the Sneedville jail. Five footpads, believed to constitute the entire gang, which for some time have been terrorizing the community by the bold, reckless holding up of the citizens, were arrested this morning. The names given are Frank Jones, Nelson Sullivan, Jim Bowler, Charles Lyle, Hugh Johnson, all young men. They were lodged in jail.
